"You've never had a Blessing that continues to bless" Toya Bush-Harris asked her fans. "Avery continues to amaze me," the celebrity mother exclaimed. "It's sweet, loving, kind, compliment, helpful, striving to be a student, and a baby in charge of taking that loves God! I thank God for him every day. Happy 10th Birthday Love Bug! I pray God continues to give me everything you need to be the mother who continues to help add to your wonderful character. . I love you. Avery and his brother, Ashton Harris, were the Internet speech last year after the mom and dad of the young people decided to send them back to school last fall. Many parents have chosen remote learning on the classes in person because of the coronavirus pandemic and the lack of a vaccine at the time. Some chose to criticize Toya Bush-Harris for sending her children to school instead of keeping them home for the semester. Avery and Ashton, however, expressed their desires to learn in person. "I just wanted to go to school because school is garbage," said Ashton during a video recording with his brother and mom. "In my words, just in my words," the young man continues. "Homeschooling is garbage," said Ashton. "I wanted to go to school to see my friends." Many defended Toya Bush-Harris and her husband's decision to send their children to school for classes in person despite their personal preferences. "The last time I checked, Toya and Eugene are the PARENTS of the #HarrisBoys," said a defender. "Mind you'all business". Another supporter of Toya and Eugene said: "I don't care what Toya or anyone else decides to do with their children. This is your choice. Educating children should be the goal."
